

Abstract of the disclosure

Use of conductive carbon black/graphite mixtures for the production of low-cost electronics

5

The invention relates to conductive polymer solutions which can be employed for the production of organic electronic components. To this end, particles of carbon black and graphite are used in the form of microplatelets in polymer solutions.